

Malaysian Association of Privates Colleges & Universities (MAPCU)

In this modern day and age, the challenge of globalization demands that each individual be well educated, possessing the necessary skills and qualifications. The birth of numerous public and private higher learning institutions gives many options for the furthering of one's studies.

As such, a guide in selecting the best match of courses and facilities is sorely needed. New Straits Times will be publishing education supplements to accommodate that need. The wide variety of institutions that fulfils the whole required criteria will surely eliminate the time wasted at sifting through unintelligible brochures.

For the respective higher learning institutions, look no further for recruits that are really interested in what you have to offer. Share information on your amenities and courses with our pool of loyal readers. Act now; contact our dedicated sales team for more information.
